“Indeed He meant us further to be free from care and to have but one work to perform; to sing as do the angels, without ceasing or intermission, the praises of the Creator, and to delight in contemplation of Him, and out cast all our cares upon Him.”
St. John of Damascus

“Look upward, where the prize is; the sight of the prize increases the determination of our will.... And what is the prize? No palm branch; but what? The kingdom of heaven, everlasting rest, glory together with Christ, the inheritance, brotherhood, ten thousand good things, which it is impossible to name.”

St. John Chrysostom

St. Paul

He preached the Gospel everywhere with burning zeal, from the borders of Arabia to the land of Spain, among both the Jews and the heathen, and receiving the title of "The Apostle to the Gentiles." His fearful sufferings were matched only by his superhuman endurance. Through all the years of his preaching, he hung from day to day like a thread between life and death.

Filling his days and nights with toil and sufferings for Christ, organizing the Church in many places and receiving a high level of perfection, he was able to say: "I live, yet not I but Christ lives in me" (Gal 2:20). He was beheaded in Rome in the reign of Nero, at the same time as St. Peter.

-From the Prologue from Ochrid by St. Nikolai Velimirovic.

Confessions – 9:00 Sunday or arranged as needed.
